We are picking up intelligence every where now-a-days, and ought to rejoice at it when it is good without question. In other words, we must not look a gift horse in the mouth unless corn is at the present rates, when, of course, it would be better to make some little inquiry into the matter. We have, however, picked up somewhat lately, in which corn has little to do, except that its reporter is one of those pernicious charlatans who wander over the country in a vagabond sort of way, eating corns or performing some such specialty in medical practice. We must not smile nor snort at such a source of information. The chirodot, in the piddler, or something of that kind, is quite as good an opportunity of observing as one engaged in a pursuit more esteemed in the world. Mr. Lincoln, we learn by a late letter, has his emissaries all over the South, and also he is a perfect copperhead in his earnest desire for peace. If this be the case, why may he not have employed some such an agent as Dr. Zacheire? We are prepared to believe it all. We have swept away all trivial record, and hold ourselves in readiness hereafter to believe anything—excepting, of course, telegraphic dispatches.

Dr. Zacheire, corn-eater—not an agricultural implement, but a chirodot—gives us further confirmation of the agreeable news that the rebels are starving. We learn that they are prepared for anything. In fact, they want peace to such a degree that nothing but the fear of certain refusal prevents their besieging it at any terms. All of this may be very true, but this is not all. We are interested upon the terms which the leaders of the rebellion offer, and we endorse them fully. The French, it is generally known, have, very much to our vexation and in utter defiance of the Monroe doctrine, very easily established themselves in Mexico, and placed, or rather are about to place, an Austrian Emperor over it. We have had to sit in mortified silence and see the contemptuous manner in which Napoleon treats us. We, indeed, have to grin episodically, and like a man whose toes are trod on accidentally, write and how "it is of no consequence." It would, however, for our pressing engagements, afford us the greatest pleasure in life to kick the imperial hignotes out of Mexico, and these rebels will not let us. They are, however, attended to, to the exclusion of all other masters. They require all our army to attend to them.

Just at this critical moment enters Dr. Zacheire. To drive the French out of Mexico would be a greatfeat; to re-establish the Union would be a great performance; to solve the question of what is to be done with the rebel leaders and armies would be a summum bonum, or a good sum; but what are we to say of the great chirodot who promises to accomplish not one but all of these great deeds? Blest are the human feet whose sufferings directed his healing steps to the South. Great corn-fed Doctor! a nation should honor thee more than the pork of the primest quality of the same fastening. Verily, "all souls from little score, " when, beneath their shelter, a nation finds peace, union and prosperity. Here is the glorious intelligence he brings:

Jeff. Davis & Co. are prepared, on condition of pardon for their past transgressions, not to lay down their arms; better than that, they are prepared to take their government-scrip army and march into Mexico, burn the French out of that Republic, and found a sister State to be in peace and unity with our own. President Lincoln—may he live a thousand years and his shadow never be any shorter—undertakes to accept these fatal propositions, though, it is said, the radicals are not willing. If this were only as true as it ought to be, truly we could say of our rebellion, "Out of this nettle danger we have plucked the flower safety." We learn, also, from another source, that Mr. Lincoln has always been a disguised Copperhead; but he has always wanted peace. Of course such a glorious peace as this he could not decline. In the whole list of terms for a restoration of the Union, could there be found any method more honorable to the nation than this, which the corn doctor assures us would be acceptable to the South? If Davis would only do this he would deserve not only pardon but promotion. He would overshadow the glory that General Monk, who once restored peace to England. He would have exhibited a species of patriotic grandeur wholly unparalleled. As for the doctor, we could not hold his name or profession in so high estimation ever hereafter. His plan is just the single one which would be the greatest for the country and the most honorable to the Southern conspirators. All honor hereafter to right boots if this should be true. This is the only drawback. What if the chirodot should be mistaken? What if, working on the feet of the Southern Confederacy, he should have misinterpreted its heart? Let us hope not. Let us rather hope that with sound understandings, thinks to him, the Southern armies shall present the order of the Great Toe to the rear of the French in Mexico.

Pennsylvania has polled thirty thousand more votes than she did in 1860. The Press (Abolition) says it shows the determination of the people to support the Government, meaning the Administration; for the Press knows no distinction between the Administration and the Government. As the Democrats polled about twenty-five thousand more votes than they ever did, we think it shows a determination of nearly half the voters of Pennsylvania to defeat the Government. We are told by the Press that Pennsylvania has sent two hundred thousand men to the war. The voting is extraordinary, even considering that a large portion of these were at home and voted. But there is no remedy for such a result. We have to accept the poll-booths with all the evils they are liable to.

If the Republicans were, indeed, patriotic, and believed what they say, they would find no consolation in such a result. They have two hundred and fifty-four thousand votes in Pennsylvania, nearly half the voter! That is their own testimony. If they were obliged to accept their own testimony as the truth, nearly half the North and all the South is for the rebellion, and a minority only loyal. How does that look?

The rebel soldiers at Atlanta, says a letter to the New York Tribune, voted in the Ohio election seven thousand voice for Brough and a few hundred for Vallandigham. Great rejoicing over the result.

NUMBER 94.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE.

Letters from Major General B. F. Butler and George D. Prentiss to General M. Jeff. Thompson—Butler Intercedes with the Secretary of War to get Jeff Paroled—Prentiss Wants to Send Liquor to Jeff—Letter from Jeff to His Sister in St. Joseph.

(From the St. Joseph (Mo.) Herald.)

The following correspondence, which has recently passed between the distinguished individuals named, was sent by General M. J. Thompson to his relatives in this city, and by their favor we are permitted to lay it before the public:

MAJOR GENERAL B. F. BUTLER TO JEFF.

Lowell, Oct. 6, 1863.

GENERAL.—Your note addressed to me was received yesterday. I will forward it to Captain Thorntorn, now commanding General Shepley's staff at New Orleans, as you request.

I retain a lively sense of the courtesy and urbanity with which you conducted operations with the command opposed to me in Louisville, and am very anxious to thank you for your kind services to Captain Thorntorn in sending him wounded, by which kindness, I have no doubt, his life was saved.

Although outlawed by the proclamation of those who you serve, who will not let me report more fully than you will, I will candidly say that my life was saved.

At this juncture I will endeavor to have your imprisonment lightened or commuted if possible.

I have therefore taken the liberty to forward to you a communication to the War Department, with a note of which the enclosed shows the contents.

Sympathizing with you that the fortune of war has made you a prisoner, yet will you pardon me if I tell that I am glad that the friends of my country are capable of the services of so effective an officer. Respectfully, your obedient servant,

BENJ. F. BUTLER.

Maj. Gen. United States Veterans.

Brig. Gen. M. JEFF. THOMPSON.

GEN. BUTLER TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR IN JEFF'S BEHALF.

To Hon. T. M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

Sir: I have the honor to inclose you a copy of a note received from Brigadier General M. J. Thompson, in which he is commandant of the forces immediately opposed to me at Pontchartrain, on the northern side of Lake Pontchartrain, when I was in command of the department of the Gulf. The note was done by the financials of England during their suspension. Every inducement should have been made to promote agriculture and manufactures. No citizen holding treasury notes should be made to suffer loss for any legitimate use of gold, while gambling it should have been discouraged. In this way might the national debt have been carried mostly without interest, gold would have been kept nearly if not quite at par, and the banknotes necessary to pay the interest alone could have paid off the debt in less than twelve years, the country in the meantime having a currency fund superior to any that can be furnished by banks. Finally, the nation being out of debt, our currency might be either specie alone or a paper currency, furnished for convenience by the treasury deposit of specie, dollar for dollar, than which no nation under the sun could have a currency superior.

The treasury notes alone should have been husbanded for their redemption, direct or indirect efforts made to promote exports and force a flow of gold to the country, as was done by the financials of England during their suspension. Every inducement should have been made to promote agriculture and manufactures. No citizen holding treasury notes should be made to suffer loss for any legitimate use of gold, while gambling it should have been discouraged. In this way might the national debt have been carried mostly without interest, gold would have been kept nearly if not quite at par, and the banknotes necessary to pay the interest alone could have paid off the debt in less than twelve years, the country in the meantime having a currency fund superior to any that can be furnished by banks. Finally, the nation being out of debt, our currency might be either specie alone or a paper currency, furnished for convenience by the treasury deposit of specie, dollar for dollar, than which no nation under the sun could have a currency superior.

Mr. Chase has provided an excellent financing tool for the banking interest, but a poor stock for the people. We have a dark prospect before us financially. If the present policy is pursued, the result is inevitable, from the fact that a tax necessary to pay the enormous interest on the national debt could not be collected. The prospect is sickening indeed.

—The Loyal Publication Society deplores the condition of the negro, because he cannot read the Bible. Well, if the negro didn't read the Bible, better for them that they do not have better let alone. Indeed, that old book is wrong on the point of the higher law held by these good people. It says, "servants, obey your masters," &c., and a variety of things of that sort; and it gives these directions to white people, too—they are the slaves in those days. If you can be free use it rather; but if not, do your duty. If these slaves, then, did read the Bible, they would read such directions as the aforesaid, and condemn Abolitionists.

But they know not the way of life unless they read the Bible. Now, there is a time when Christians had no Bible to read, and they were much better than they are now. They have read and read until they have become wise above what is written, and made a higher law of their own, which teaches them that they are not bound by law that man makes at all. "Who art thou that judgest another man's servant?" the old book asks.

General Thompson, terribly as we are opposed in this war, I love you personally for what my son has told me of you. I thank you for your kindness to him and for your tender care of him. I am sorry to hear that you are ill again. Please give my regards to your wife, and I hope you will get well. It is inconsistent with your public duty to permit me to send him a dummock of whisky. Please be so kind as to let me know your decided course.

GEORGE D. PRENTICE TO GEN. SCHOFIELD, ASKING PERMISSION TO SEND WHISKY TO JEFF.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 15, 1863.

To the Military Commandant at St. Louis:

DEAR SIR: I learn that General M. J. Thompson is in the prison at Alton, Illinois. A year and a half ago, when I was a lad about 16, I was taken into a kitchen by Capt. Thornton, a most valuable, brave and efficient officer, was grievously wounded, with at least seven bullet holes through his clothing and two parts of his body. He was taken to the hospital at Jeffersonville, Indiana, and remained there for a month. The doctor who treated him was Capt. Thornton, a man whom I have the highest opinion of that kindness which he showed to Capt. Thornton alone should entitle him to every possible consideration. The doctor who treated him gave him to Capt. Thornton, and the wounded man died of his treatment with the utmost gratitude.

I found him a troublesome enemy enough, but his humanity, which was in contrast with the conduct of General Taylor, leads me to set him far above the rest of the rebels.

He was a man who was not much in the habit of seeking leniency for rebels, I trust the War Department will take it as a guarantee that this is a proper care for the extension of every indulgence. I am most respectfully your obedient servant,

BENJAMIN F. BUTLER.

CITY NEWS.

WOOD'S THEATER.—Miss Jane Coombs appears in another new play this evening, entitled the Wife's Secret. The piece is ripe with interest and thrilling effects. It was originally produced in London by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keen—the theatrical artists representing the principal characters—and performed by them in that city upwards of five hundred nights, crowding the theater during that entire period. The decided and triumphant success attending its production can easily be imagined by its unprecedented run. Miss Coombs has the only manuscript copy, together with the exclusive right of performing it in this country. The language of the Dancing Barber will conclude the evening's entertainment. This will certainly a very attractive one and should insure a crowded house.

We take pleasure in advising our friends that Mons. Chas. Bullett, the artist member of the firm of Muldoon & Co., will shortly visit Italy for the purpose of selecting a stock of marble suited to the wants of their extensive trade. As Mons. Bullett has few equals in his art, those favoring him with their orders may rely on procuring the very best material and workmanship that the extensive workshop afford. As the opportunity does not often occur we advise all in want of statues, monuments or tablets to intrust their orders with him, as his taste and judgment is of a very superior order.

AN INTENDED RAID.—Information has been received in this city that a cavalry force estimated at fifteen thousand, under Wheeler and Forrest, are in the neighborhood of Decatur and Tuscaloosa, Alabama, preparing to cross the river to operate against Gen. Grant's communications. A party of scouts sent out by Wheeler—members of his body-guard—to get information, were captured a few days ago in Maury county, Tenn., and taken to Nashville. Forrest is said to have been wounded again in the battle near Tuscaloosa, on the 24th ult.

POLICE PROCEEDINGS.—Monday, Nov. 2.—Pa. King, drunk and disorderly conduct; $100 for three months.

Henry Long and William Hogan were presented as suspected felons, and Wm. Hogan was carrying concealed a deadly weapon; Long was discharged and Hogan's case continued.

Mary O'Connell, drunk and disorderly conduct; discharged.

Hugh McCall, drunk and disorderly conduct; discharged.

A report of M. J. Paul, Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, of fire and alarms for the months of September and October, 1863.

September 27.—False alarm—fire in Jeffersonville.

September 27.—M. Birkow—Market, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, between Main and Walnut; loss $30; insurance $30; accidental.

October 2.—Campbell, between Main and Market; loss $100; insurance $100.

October 29.—Goodwill & Co.—Washington, between Second and Third; loss $5,000; insurance $200; carriages.

Officer C. W. Tiller arrested on Sunday, William Hogan and Henry Long, alias Jack shepherd, two notorious thieves, on the charge of stealing a lot of jewelry and a fine revolver on the steamer Major Anderson, on her upward trip Friday. They had also in their possession two shawls which were stolen on the boat. The property can be seen by calling upon Carter Tiller, at the office of the Chief of Police.

The First Middle Tennessee regiment, under command of Col. Scully, did noble service last week. They "invaded" Hickman county, Tennessee, scattered several gangs of bushwhackers and captured sixty prisoners. Among the latter was a rebel Captain named J. B. Austin, a Lieutenant named D. P. Thomas, and J. O. Griffith, one of the publishers and editors of the old Nashville Union and American.

The Maysville Eagle has been informed that there was a skirmish on Saturday last, near Mt. Sterling, between the company of Capt. Rice, of the Fortleuk Kentucky mounted infantry, and the guerrillas under John T. Williams, in which the former gained a decided advantage. We have no further particulars, and we do not know how true even the report we have received may be.

The accommodation train over the Louisville and Frankfort railroad will hereafter leave the depot, corner of Brook and Jefferson, at 8:30 p.m. Persons residing along the line of the road and passengers to Frankfort will take notice and be on board in season. The other trains will arrive and depart as usual.

Louisville is not the only place that is suffering from dear coal. In New York the price has advanced to fifteen dollars per ton for anthracite, and eighteen dollars for cannel. A ton is equal to twenty-eight bushels; but a ton of anthracite coal goes as far as twice that quantity of bituminous.

The regular monthly meeting of the Louisville Board of Trade takes place this (Tuesday) evening at 7 o'clock, at Mechanics' Library, on Fourth street. Business of importance will come before the meeting. It is earnestly hoped that every member will be present.

Several prisoners captured at Lookout Mountain arrived in Nashville on Sunday. Among them were Cap. Wm. Richardson, of the Fifteenth Alabama, and Sergeant Jacob Vanoy, of the First Arkansas battery.

FOUND.—A small amount of money in greenbacks, which the owner can obtain of F. Reicher, Esq., at the German Insurance Company, by proving property and paying for this notice.

FRESH HARD SHELL CRABS.—A fine lot of hard-shell crabs, all alive and kicking, have just been received at the St. Charles Restaurant, on Fifth street, C. C. Rieger & Co., proprietors.

The Government has ordered the Quartermaster's Department to be removed to this city. The Medical Director, Colonel Wm. S. Louis, will hereafter make his headquarters at this place.

John Jones, company D, Sixth Kentucky Cavalry, died in one of the general hospitals on Sunday morning.

The Nashville train arrived on time yesterday. All was quiet along the route.
